This large home is set on a wooded lot and had a lot of nice existing oak woodwork and features throughout. The desire was to mix in white painted cabinetry and make everything look cohesive. Their island increased in size and better storage solutions were used in the kitchen, mudroom and dining room. New railing and front door was installed. Tile was set in a herring bone pattern to add interest and break up the large space. Durable quartzite countertops are in the kitchen with painted maple and rustic cherry cabinetry.
